

Status and role of mother in the new Islamic civilization

Nafise akhavan nilchi¹

Abstract:

There are numerous civilizations throughout human history, have been developed and eventually declining. Islamic civilization has traveled this path and, after centuries of decline with the rise again. Iran's Islamic Revolution turning point of human social development is the dawn of a new Islamic civilization. This article emphasizes that it is necessary to create a civilization of two basic elements, one produce thought and one Upbringing human in the software and hardware. This has important implications in various spheres; one of the main pillars is the family. And it can be claimed that motherhood is a key factor in the realization of the goals of the Islamic Revolution- The realization of Islamic civilization- In this study, using the Library and Archives of study to describe and explain the status and role of mothers in the Islamic civilization. Benefited from the descriptive research approach.

Keywords: motherhood, family, Islamic Revolution in Iran, Islamic civilization

¹ N.akhavan.n@gmail.com